LETTER FROM THE WHITE SUL-

[Correspondence of Alexandria Gazette.] WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va. Aug. 28.-Alexandria and the adjacent this season at The White. Their friends at home and your Virginia readers generally may spare a moment to learn how they are passing the time and deporting themselves at this, the most fa-mous and fashionable of the southern summer resorts. The number of guests has been somewhat smaller than usual, perhaps not exceeding six hundred at any time. It reached that figure on the 15th of August and still maintains it, the daily arrivals about keeping pace with those who leave for home, or for other resorts. For some reason the visitors to all of the Virginia resorts, and to all of the northern, except Newport and Bar Harbor, have been fewer this summer than usual. The White Sulphur has, comparatively, more than held its own. And then, too, a more than ample amends has been made in the even more than usual culture and elegance of the guests and in the fine mangement. The manager, Mr. Scoville, proprietor of the Hotel Carroll in Lynchburg, is a model man for such a position. The table, the living, and every appointment and department have been most admirable; and the declaration is on almost every lip that never was so enjoyable a season experienced. Among the representatives from your city and immediate section I may mention the following: Mr. and Mrs. Julian Burke and their daughter Louise, a bewitch-ing debutante who at the grand ball was quaintly and sweetly costumed in was quantily and sweetly costumed in her great, great grandmother's dress, a rose brocade and point lace; Miss Sallie V. FREE SILVER AND WAGES.

General Warner says: "John Bright summarized in few words the labor question when he said it made all the difference in the world whether two men were after one job or two jobs after one man. As long as large numbers of idle men are hunting places there is little hope of better wages for any one; o e is fortunate indeed if he can keep the place he has. Moreover, if prices of the products of labor continue to go down, the wages of labor must go down also."
Professor Cairnes says: "Now this we conceive to be, as a general proposition, essentially impossible. If the prices of the laborer's provisions and clothing rise, this result can only happen (assuming that the rise proceeds from an abundance of money) because more money is spent on those commodities; and, inasmuch as the laboring classes themselves immensely outnumber all classes who consume the same commodities, it is plain that it is their expenditure, and consequently their wages, which must substantially regu late the rise. The rise in wages, in short, is (where it proceeds from an abundance of money) the cause of the rise in the price of commodities, and consequently cannot be preceded by its own effect. The remonetization of silver in the United States will greatly lessen the demand for gold for money and increase the demand for silver; it Aug. 28.—Alexandria and the adjacent will take value away from gold and section have made a large contribution to the delightful company assembled the level of gold will come down and the level of silver be raised. It will then take less labor and fewer of the products of labor to pay gold debts than now. The gold level will be lowered the world over and the price level of commodities will be raised; and as this level is raised, the reward of those who produce the commodities (the laborers) will be increased.'
